John W. Hanold, Ph.D.

As Associate Vice President for Research for the Pennsylvania State University (Penn State), John works to establish effective partnerships and linkages among University offices, faculty, government agencies, and private industry to promote and support the Penn State research enterprise. As Director of Sponsored Programs, he oversees proposal preparation and contract negotiation activities for Penn State's sponsored research, instruction, and outreach activities. John also serves as co-chair of ACOR, which is responsible for the ongoing training and development of the Penn State research administration community.

John has worked as a Penn State research administrator in various capacities, serving in Materials Science and Engineering, the Institute for Policy Research and Evaluation, and the Office of Sponsored Programs. John provides comprehensive training to PSU staff in all aspects of pre-award and post-award research administration. He has taught over 50 philosophy classes at Penn State, including classes in logic, ethical theory, business ethics, medical ethics, and research ethics. John has served on PSU's Conflict of Interest Committee and the University Ethics Committee. He has taught national and international workshops on federal contracting, industry contracting, international contracting, export control regulations, research ethics, and the art of contract negotiation. John is a graduate of Marquette University (B.A., philosophy) and a graduate of Penn State (Ph.D., philosophy).

Regina Notz

Regina works for EU GrantsAccess as a senior research manager since 2009. She studied at ETH Zurich, where she also did her PhD. Her PhD was followed by a PostDoc as a Marie Curie Industrial Fellow at the Unilever Research and Health Institute in the Netherlands. Regina stayed for 5.5 years with Unilever, moving from basic research towards product development, research and innovation management. Back in Switzerland, Regina followed up on her passion for research management and consultancy at her current position in the international grants office of ETH and University of Zurich, where she is in charge of advising researchers with US grants and providing support to set up institutional policies for these grants.
